

What Every School Lawyer Needs to Know About Special Education

November 13-14, 2014

You're Invited to Register for this training.

Special Education law is often counter-intuitive even to the experienced school lawyer. Special education is driven by a procedurally detailed federal law, the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). The IDEA creates an individual entitlement to an appropriate education with procedural safeguards to ensure that the standard is met. Decision-making is bottom-up; an individualized education program is developed each year by a team; and parents are an integral part of the process. Experienced special education attorney, Elena Gallegos will introduce school lawyers to the IDEA by reviewing major court cases and recent cases, and providing practical guidance and tools for keeping your school clients legally compliant. The program will include "You be the Judge" case studies and Fact or Fiction scenarios.

This training will be at The Rushmore Plaza Civic Center.
